Date: 27th May 2023

Last updated: 14th June 2023

Summary

A whistleblower is someone who discovers something that is wrong and alerts his employer or the relevant authorities to what is going on. The law recognises that Whistleblowing occurs and protects employees who are whistleblowers from detrimental treatment such as dismissal. To be protected by the law a whistleblower must fall within the stringent legal rules. Anyone who does not act in good faith or is motivated by personal gain will not be protected.

Our Policy

Amplified Arts Academy is run in accordance with the law. It is our policy as an employer to ensure that at every level of management our organisation is conducted in such a way as to comply with all legal requirements that govern our activities. This policy applies to the way that we employ and manage our staff. We operate as a team and we expect our employees to all play their part as members of the team for the good of the organisation as a whole. We do not believe you will ever feel the need to become a whistleblower. There is no reason for you to believe that you will suffer detriment for speaking up if you believe that something is wrong or that if we are alerted to it we will conceal or destroy evidence. However we are fully aware of our responsibility under the law and we will respect the legal protection afforded to a whistleblower.

Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998

The Act protects “whistleblowers” from suffering detriment in employment and makes dismissal for certain disclosure automatically unfair. There is no qualifying period of employment for this protection.

Who is Protected?

A worker who makes a qualifying disclosure that is made to one of a category of persons set out in the Act and which is therefore a protected disclosure.

‘Worker’ is widely defined and includes employees and other workers as normally understood by the expression but also contractors under our control and people on training schemes.

What is Protected?

Certain types of 'qualifying disclosure' are information that in the reasonable belief of the disclosing worker shows wrongdoing of one or more of the following kinds:

3. A miscarriage of justice has occurred or is or is likely to occur;

5. The environment has been, is being or is likely to be damaged;
6. That information tending to show any matter falling within any one of the above categories has been, is being, or is likely to be deliberately concealed.

However if the person making the disclosure commits a criminal offence by making it is not a qualifying disclosure.

To be a 'Protected Disclosure' the 'Qualifying Disclosure' must only be made to one of the following categories of person:

1. The employer or (where the disclosure relates to the conduct of another person or matters for which another person other than the employer has legal responsibility) that other person;
2. A legal adviser in the course of getting legal advice;

5. A person other than those set out above where the worker acts in good faith, reasonably believes the information to be substantially true, does not make the disclosure for personal gain, and it is in all the circumstances reasonable to make the disclosure and
 1. The worker reasonably believes he will be subjected to a detriment if the disclosure is made to his employer or the prescribed person;
 2. There is no prescribed person and the worker believes that the wrongdoing will be concealed or destroyed by the employer; and/or

What Protection do you have?

You are protected from detriment or dismissal as a result of making a protected disclosure. Dismissal is automatically unfair, and there is no limit on compensation for such a dismissal. Complaint of detriment or dismissal is made to an Employment Tribunal.
